Housemates

Hey guys!

Yeah... I'm back.
>I'm seriously trying to get back into writing. I'm trying to write an original novel and that's going to be extremely serious, so I want to try something else more... light-hearted.

So, does anyone remember Sayonara Sanshain? Well, I'm thinking of starting something similar, yet something completely different at the same time.

I felt the cast was too crowded for my previous story so I'm going to have this one as a cast of 14 characters, 7 males and 7 females. It's going to be a slice of life styled fic.

>The scenario:

14 teens are given the opportunity to live in a mansion in the middle of the forest. These teens are just given a map of the surrounding area so they can access the nearest towns to get supplies.

These teens have to live together and their lives are followed throughout their lives in the mansion. There is no bulit-in voting system where the other contestants vote each other off; rather views vote off who they dislike after every 3 episodes. The teen who survives the longest wins the mansion for them and their family to live in.

His father at first wasn't happy that his son was Androsexual and was pursuing a career in dancing, but has since warmed up to the idea, however he won't speak about it with anyone and will often change the subject when someone brings it up.
